INSURGENTS TO EXTEND SUPPORT

Progressives to Endorse Democratic Steel Bill.

FORESHADOWS SENATE ACTION

Republican Faction Favoring Democratic Tariff Revision Bills May Insure Their Passage and Send Them to President.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Immediately after the house adjourned, twenty-five Republican insurgent representatives met to decide whether or not they would support the pending Democratic bill proposing a revision of the iron and steel schedule of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

The sense of the meeting was that the Underwood bill provided for revision downward and therefore should have the support of progressive Republicans. While a final decision was not reached by the insurgents the informal announcement was made to the effect that practically every member of the group would support the iron and steel bill, as well as the other tariff measures that will be reported to the house by Representative Underwood and his Democratic associates on the committee on ways and means.

The importance of the attitude of the house insurgents lies in the fact that it probably foreshadows a similar intention on the part of the La-Follette following in the senate, in which event the Democratic steel revision bill will be put up to the president.

In framing the iron and steel bill Chairman Underwood made a bid for the support of the progressives of the house and senate. This was indicated in the speech made by Representative Palmer of Pennsylvania, who opened the debate on the measure. Mr. Palmer pointed out that the bill reported by the Democrats was patterned to some extent after the metal schedule offered in the special session by Senator Cummins of Iowa, one of the progressive candidates for the presidential nomination.

Adds 60,000 Acres to U. S. Forests.

Washington, Jan. 27. — A tract of more than 60,000 acres of young forest growth has been added to the Cache national forest in Utah and Idaho, along the southern border of the forest. About 13,000 acres of nonforest border has been eliminated by presidential order.

SPECIAL MEETING SERIES

SPECIAL EVANGELISTIC SERVICES WILL BEGIN MONDAY AT M. E. CHURCH.

Beginning with Monday evening the Methodist church will engage in a series of special mission services which will be held each evening at 7:30 o'clock and continue for two weeks. Dr. D. H. Ramsdell, one of the most popular and well-known ministers of the conference, will preach each evening and a large chorus choir will lead in the song service. The Methodists account themselves most fortunate to have secured the services of Dr. Ramsdell, who will instruct and inspire in his public addresses. A series of topics; of which the following are suggestive, will be considered in a practical and sensible manner:

"God's Unidentified People," "The Magic Name," "In the White Light," "Ethical Values," "Before the Bar."

These meetings will be open to the public, and members of neighboring churches will be especially welcome.

NEGRO ATTACKS TWO GIRLS

Father Makes Effort to Get Assailant in Town Lockup.

Schoolcraft, Mich., Jan. 27.—Entering the home of Loren Burson while Burson and his wife were away, "Tuff" Brady, a big negro, grabbed the two little Burson girls and began hugging and kissing them. One girl tore herself away from the negro and ran screaming into the street. The negro, becoming frightened, dropped the other girl he held in his arms and left the house. Brady was found by the village officers shortly after and placed in the village lockup.

Burson upon his return home, hearing of the attack that had been made upon his little girls, went to the jail and endeavored to get at the negro. Brady was taken to Kalamazoo.

H. S. BOYS BANQUET

MEMBERS OF Y. M. C. A. HAVE ENJOYABLE EVENING AT M. E. CHURCH.

Interesting and Instructive Toasts by Faculty Members Follow Big Dinner.

The newly formed Y. M. C. A. of the Ypsilanti high school held a highly successful banquet Friday evening in the Methodist dining-room, the ladies of that church catering. Covers were laid for thirty-five, and this included several out-of-town guests.

Forest Tefft, the president, was toastmaster and first introduced Supt. Arbaugh, who urged upon the boys the necessity of their character being formed before the age of tyenty-five, stating that after that character-building was not so natural a process, he had found. W. H. Tinker, of the University Y. M. C. A. in Ann Arbor, spoke of the different types of young men there were. Principal Quillin and Professor Ross in their remarks spoke with warm approval of the new organization and gave the boys much encouragement and praise in this new undertaking. W. M. Aiken of the Ann Arbor high school based his remarks on the lives of three boys which he briefly sketched.

At the close of the toasts, Forest Tefft thanked the ladies on behalf of the association for the capital banquet they had prepared, and Mr. Quillin led the boys in nine rahs for the ladies.

NORMAL WILL BE REPRESENTED BY GOOD TALKERS

The first places in the final oratorical contest held in Normal hall Friday evening were won by Miss Olive McBride for the women and Robert Ward for the men. Miss McBride and Mr. Ward will represent the Normal College in the state oratorical contest. The subject of Miss McBride's article was "Practical Art" and of Mr. Ward's "The basic principles of Modern Progress." This is the second time Mr. Ward has had the honor of representing the Normal in the state contest. Harold Johnson, who spoke on "The conservation of our human resources," was given second place and Max Harris whose subject was "The Mission of LaFollette," was given third.

The other contestants were Joseph Doyle, who spoke on "Industrial Inequalities" and Howard P. F. James, whose subject was "A democratic view of education." Other numbers on the program were instrumental and vocal solos by Minor White and Joy Wigle.

The judges of the contest were George Eves and Thomas E. H. Black of the faculty of the University and Attorney W. S. Putnam of this city.

The contestants presented strong arguments in a clear and concise manner and the Normal has a good chance of winning the state contest which will be held in Olivet, Mar. 1.

BIGGER HOSPITAL IN SIGHT

PRESENT CONDITIONS INDICATE RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF NEEDED FACILITY.

The present outlook would indicate that a larger city hospital with a modern operating room and other better facilities would be needed very soon as the present one located on Chicago avenue seems to be inadequate to meet the present needs. Another nurse from Detroit has been added this week to the present corps to assist in the care of the patients now taking treatment. A number of patients, who have applied for rooms, cannot be cared for on the premises because of the overcrowded condition. With additional patronage and additional capital Ypsilanti could well maintain an up-to-date city hospital.

LIFE SAVER A SUICIDE

William Swarthout, of Holland Crew, Shoots Himself.

Holland, Mich., Jan. 27. — William Swarthout, thirty-eight years old, a member of the Holland lifesaving crew for five years, shot himself through the head, in a barn back of his home at Macatawa park, and died two hours later. A grocer passing by heard the shot, but when he reached Swarthout the latter was dead.

Swarthout is believed to have become demented over his slow recovery from an accident, in which he with four others figured last fall. The men were shingling the station when a scaffolding on which they were standing collapsed and all were seriously injured.

RESUME WRECK INQUEST

Further Inquiry into Disaster at Kinmundy, Ill.

Engineers and Firemen of Damaged Trains Are Down for Early Appearance.

Centralia, Ill., Jan. 27.—Deputy Coroner Grant Featherling reconvened the inquest into the death of James T. Harahan and three others in the collision of two Illinois Central trains at Kinmundy, Ill., early Monday morning.

Conductor John H. Brainard and Flagman Harry J. Broecker, two of the three men held responsible by the railroad for the collision, testified Monday, the first day of the inquest.

Because the engine crews of the trains did not attend the reconvened inquest, a recess was taken, after one witness was examined. After the deputy coroner threatened to issue bench warrants for the two engineers and two firemen, P. J. Foley, assistant general manager of the Illinois Central, promised to have the men who were subpoenaed here. A subpoena was issued also for Henry Snyderjohn, operator in the tower at Edgewood on the night of the wreck. Snyderjohn is now the operator at Seigel.

W. B. Rushing of Plainview, Tex., who was a guest at the hotel in Kinmundy on the night of the collision, testified he saw the two trains crash from the window of his room. He contradicted previous testimony of Conductor Brainard by saying that No. 25 had taken water before the collision.

The men who made this expedition were J. P. Caugney, driving, and Captain W. E. West, J. C. West, John Darr and L. B. Dewitt. Dr. O. B. Vanepp accompanied them from Pelee Island in midlake, to Leamington, Ont., and the doctor and Mrs. Norman McCormick, of the Island, made that part of the trip with them.

WHITE BOY KILLS NEGRO

Race Trouble Results in Murder of Indianapolis Schoolboy.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—Trouble between the white and colored pupils of public school No. 25 culminated in the possible murder of Harry Payne, eleven years of age and colored. He was on his way to school when Robert Stevenson, a white boy about the same age, met him and flourishing a paper in the colored boy's face put a small rifle against his abdomen and fired.

The bullet passed through the lad's body and he sank to the ground unconscious. The Stevenson boy disappeared. Physicians say the Payne boy cannot live.

GLAZIER IS AGAIN WITH HIS FAMILY

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 27—Frank P. Glazier is now with his wife at his home at Cavanaugh lake, near Chelsea. He hopes to recover sufficiently to make a new start in life and wipe out the stain brought upon his name by his misappropriation of state funds, for which he was serving a term of 10 to 15 years in prison here until pardoned by Gov. Osborn Friday.

Mrs. Glazier came here Friday afternoon after receiving official notice from Gov. Osborn that her husband had been released from prison on the ground that he is critically ill.

The meeting between Glazier and his wife was pathetic in the extreme, as Mrs. Glazier had not seen her husband for a month previous to then. They were left alone in their happiness, following which the two took a carriage to the station about 10 o'clock and boarded an interurban car for Chelsea, where they arrived at 11 o'clock.

They were then driven to their home on the shore of Cavanaugh lake, six miles south of Chelsea.

Glazier was permitted to make the trip by physicians, following an examination as to his condition on Friday.

Warden Simpson of Jackson prison thought it best for Glazier to remain until today, but consented to his removal upon receiving the report of the physicians.

Mrs. Glazier had brought civilian clothes to the prison which her husband donned at once in order to make the trip home. Although Glazier is but 49 years old he is pale and wasted.

Glazier's mother is also in poor health and will probably accompany the family to Bermuda if consent of the state can be obtained.

It is reported here that friends of Glazier in Chelsea are planning for a reception to be given him at his home later on. There is rejoicing among his Chelsea friends at his release.

The general understanding is that Glazier is now penniless and is dependent upon his friends and relatives for support for the present. The summer home at Cavanaugh lake is said to be all they have left.

The Ypsilanti Scouts will take part in any activity that may be assigned them and have their share in escorting this distinguished founder of the Boy Scout movement from his hotel to the armory. Here they will be given a place among the other scouts.

The officers in charge are desirous that the boys get speedily into training, so that they may creditably do that which is assigned them, probably on short notice. A few uniforms may still be procured from clothiers in Ypsilanti.

LAW GETS "AD MAN"

ALFORD HANMER SPENDS A COUPLE DAYS IN JAIL FOR ALLEGED CROOKEDNESS.

Is Charged With Defrauding a Woman of $500 to Promote Advertising Schemes.

A. H. Hanmer, who calls himself "The Ad Man" is again in the hands of the law in Ann Arbor. Friday he was taken under a writ of capias. Mattie Schopeler of Ann Arbor claims that she was persuaded into giving a contract for $500 to be invested in the "Hanmer Method," by Hanmer's claiming that various business men in Ann Arbor had put certain sums of money into the business which she afterward found was false. The woman further claims that Hanmer put the money into his own pocket instead of into any business. The case is being tried this afternoon and an effort is being made by Attorney Lee Brown to quash the case. Judge Kinne will no doubt sustain the application of the complainant, however, in the meantime, Hanmer awaits developments in the county jail. Bail is fixed at $500.

OPERATORS AND WORKERS APART

No Indications of Agreement on Higher Wages.

MINERS DEMAND AN INCREASE

Employers Ask Ten Cents Reduction, Citing that They Have Much Coal Mined and May Have to Lay Off Hands.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The scale committee of the miners and operators met and proved in a few moments to be far apart in respect to prices to be paid for mining coal after the expiration of the present agreement in April.

The miners' demands include 10 cents increase on the ton and 20 per cent increase on all other work about the mines. The operators met this with a demand for a reduction of 10 cents per ton for mining coal and a corresponding decrease in the pay for other work.

The operators urged the increased cost of mining owing to the many new state laws which require large annual expenditures and which the miners themselves have brought upon the operators and also that there is already a surplus of mined coal and higher wages would mean that the miners would be idle a great part of the time.

The miners asked that the international officers be permitted to take part in the session of the joint committee and this was agreed to, but the officers will have no vote in determining any questions arising in the committee.

There is no indication of the miners and operators coming together on a basis of higher wages.

RAPPAPORT A WITNESS

McNamara's Attorney before Indianapolis Investigators.

Refuses to Produce McNamara's Checkbooks, but Later Is Supposed to Have Done So.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27. — Leo Rappaport, attorney for John J. McNamara after the latter's extradition to California, was before the federal grand jury, but refused to answer any questions relating to McNamara's checkbooks, which were believed to be in his possession. He was asked a number of questions, but answered all to the effect that the matter was between himself and his client.

Judge Anderson asked a number of very pointed questions and at the close of the argument declared that Rappaport had not come to him in good faith.

Cases were cited to show that such matters were not privileged and Rappaport was ordered to answer the questions, the court saying that if lawyers could not be compelled to produce evidence that was in existance before the crime was committed they might as well go out of business. Rappaport returned to the grand jury room and it is supposed that he gave the required evidence, as he afterwards received his discharge as a witness.

SAVED FROM CRUCIFIXION

Fanatical Women About to Nail Impostor to a Cross.

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 27. — A dispatch from Lodnz, Russian Poland, says a man named Kowalski, who had posed as "the Saviour," had a narrow escape from crucifixion at the hands of fanatical women at that place. The women, who are Moravians, recently formed a new sect and selected Kowalski as their saviour.

They worshiped him as the supreme being and finally urged him to allow himself to be crucified in order to prove the truth of their belief by his resurrection. Kowalski balked when it came to the crucifixtion part of the program, but the women seized him and were about to carry out their plans when the police appeared and saved the man from death on the cross.

Arbitration Board Gives Up and Departs from Lawrence, Mass.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 27. — The strike of 30,000 operatives in the worsted and cotton mills of Lawrence and vicinity against a reduction in wages has settled down to a protracted struggle between the corporations and their former employes.

The members of the state board of conciliation and arbitration have left the city, their efforts having been in vain. The collapse of the peace negotiations has had a disheartening effect upon business men, who fear the strike will last many months.

"CITY GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION."

We have been seeing somewhat during the past few days what the secretary of the National Municipal League has to say about the workings of the commission form of government in Texas cities. We have also seen what some of the citizens of those cities have had to say about regarding those workings. And now we believe it will be helpful to get the viewpoint of Professor Arthur Bushnell Hart of Harvard, because of his conspicuous fitness to make a careful analysis of situations as he found them there in 1908. He went for the express purpose of making a thorough investigation, and the impressions he gathered during the trip were published in the Boston Transcript. As. Mr. Woodruff says, "They give the views of a dispassionate critic sympathetic with the aspirations of American cities to improve their adminstrative methods.

From this article we quote the following: "It does not appear that any of these places have suffered more from bad government than the common lot, as compared with northern communities of equivalent population. The total taxes of San Antonio and Huston have been less than might be expected, those of Dallas and Fort Worth rather greater.

Galveston is in an anomalous condition because of the destruction in the storm of 1900. Dallas has less than the average of municipal debts. The ground in Texas is unusually well adapted for experiments in government, inasmuch as the state and every one of the large cities is overwhelmingly democratic in politics, so that it is not possible to resort to the usual method of a citizen's movement which shall hold the balance of power between the regular parties and control one or the other to accept a reform candidate or a policy of thrift.

"This state of things has its advantages, and it probblay makes it possible to get startling changes in city charters without thereby impairing the success of the dominant party in state and national elections. In Galveston, facing the conditions and realizing that money could not be raised in the general markets, the loan of $1,500,000 for the construction of the seawall was taken up at home. Truck-drivers and workmen subscribed for $100 bonds and paid for them in monthly installments; and one of the few richest concerns took $200,000 at once.

"In Huston, as in Galveston, the business men demanded a change. The committee of the city government, cooperating with the citizens' committee, in joint session drew up a charter based on that of Galveston, though giving considerably greater power to the mayor. In Fort Worth there was no special complaint of the city government but a citizens' movement led to the drafting of a charter which the obliging legislature enacted on condition that it be submitted to popular vote. There was little positive complaint of the city government at Dallas, but a feeling that something better might be secured. A citizens' movement resulted in the drafting of charter.

"The four charters of these cities are a contribution to the science of municipal government and, though they differ considerably from each other in details, all contain three main principles: a small commission with both legislative and executive powers, absolute control of the commissioners over the subordinate officers of the city government, and searching limitations on the granting of franchises. Of the four charters, those of Galveston and Dallas are superior to the other two in clearness, explicitness and arrangement. The Dallas charter is particularly well analyzed and ought to be consulted by the makers of any modern city charter. The commissioners and the mayor are elected for the unreasonably short term of two years; with a few exceptions all the other servants and employes of commission cities are appointed by, responsible to and removed by the board of commissioners.

"Upon no subject has more pains been taken in drafting these charters than in the clauses on franchises. In Galveston, for instance, every franchise must have previous public notice, must contain provisions for forfeiture in case of non-compliance, is subject to taxation, cannot run more than fifty years.

"In Huston the commission may grant a franchise with two precautions for less than thirty years, but may submit any project to the voters at the expense of the corporation asking for the franchise and must submit franchises running more than thirty years. In Dallas no franchise can run more than twenty years, and every franchise must include a payment of four per cent of the gross revenues to the city, which shall have a right of purchase; and the grant of every franchise is subject to a referedum if called for. In Fort Worth every ordinance of every kind is subject to a referendum. Here we have the various protections of publicity, discretion, explicitness and remuneration to the city, with the referendum in the background.

GOOD ROADS AND THE FARMER.

Every wide-awake farmer realizes that better transportation facilities enhance the value of his own farm. It also expresses itself in the asset value of better living conditions. Church, school, transportation facilities are all dove-tailed together as elements in creating an asset which always affects the property value. Every good thing adds to the sum total of value in any community, and every bad thing and every evil thing subtracts from it.

The county road system, it seems to us, ought to appeal especially to the farmer, because it is bound to adjust the cost of construction and maintenance of good roads more equitably upon all of the citizens of the country. Under the present system it is not equitably adjusted. The farmer builds most of the roads and maintains them while the city citizens occupies them to a large extent for enjoyment. His own taxes are expended in the city in the main. As the growth in population, through manufacturing enterprises and otherwise, has been so very much greater in the cities than in the country, the burden has grown commensurately disproportionate.

The city of Detroit, for example, is paying a very liberal proportion of the state's appropriation for good roads. The county of Wayne, in addition to this, is helping to get it back by building, literally, good roads leading to Detroit. Washtenaw, more than most counties in the state, should take advantage of what Detroit has done and give the benefit to every farmer in Washtenaw of these splendid roads which Wayne county is building up to her borders by connecting up with these roads a first-class road constructed by the county of Washtenaw under the county system.

The farmers of Washtenaw will, in all probability, later on be relieved of a very large proportion of the cost of maintenance of the main trunk road through it by reason of the proposal of the national government to build a goodly number of recognized trunk through thoroughfares. The farmer is certainly coming into his own; and he should be on the alert in getting the cooperation of the cities in the Good Roads Propaganda.

CHOCOLATE BAD FOR EYES.

So Says Medical Association Speaker. Beer Also Optically Harmful.

Dr. J. Scott Wood read a paper before the Medical Association of the Greater City of New York upon diseases of the eye caused by imprudence in eating or drinking.

In the discussion that followed Dr. North said that much of the eye troubles of children were caused by excessive eating of chocolate. Many parents forbid their children to eat candy, but allow them to eat chocolate in large quantities, and this poisons the system. Similar troubles, he said, were often caused by beer. There was something in the composition of beer that was injurious to the eyes, the speaker added.

President R. Webb Wilcox of the association said the eye troubles were caused by a chemical substitute for hops sometimes put in beer.

Dr. Ernest Gallant said that most people did not eat properly and so brought the trouble upon themselves. In eating grapes they throw away the skin, the best part of the fruit.

Bran should be taken by humans, the doctor claimed, as well as by horses.

Old Superstitions.

Coral beads formerly were worn around the neck of children to prevent nosebleed. It was also believed that a piece of brown paper placed under the tongue of a child would stop epistaxis.

LABOUCHERE A FAMOUS EDITOR

Member of Parliament For Almost Forty Years.

HIS CAREER LIKE A NOVEL.

Once Came to America With a Circus. Returned Later as Attache of the British Legation at Washington. Created a Riot In Parliament.

Henry Labouchere, the noted English editor who died recently at the age of eighty, was born in Windsor in 1831. He had a varied career, filled with amusing incidents and political triumphs.

He was educated at Eton and Trinity college, Cambridge, but left before he received his degree. His days at college furnish several amusing stories that he delighted to tell. One day, feeling especially rich after having received a remittance from his father, he decided not to call in his friends to help celebrate. He wanted to see how it would feel to celebrate alone, so he went to a hotel, engaged a room, and when the waiter asked for his order he demanded a big bowl of punch.

The waiter asked for the order to be repeated several times before he would take it. He couldn't imagine what was wanted with a whole bowl of punch. The story wound up that Labouchere did away with as much of the liquid as he possibly could and then he was forced to send for his friends to finish it.

A circus that passed through Cambridge contained among its performers a beautiful woman, a bareback rider. Labouchere became enamored of the woman, and when the circus came to America Labouchere came with it. While he was never really a performer, he was sometimes allowed to hold the hoops through which the rider would jump.

The circus went to Mexico and Labouchere with it. There he traveled about the country, finally connecting himself with a band of revolutionists. He advised the revolutionists, and they did well while under his instruction. The circus rider wrote him, however, and he left the revolution to join her. He passed through the central western part of the United States and finally found himself in St. Paul. There he took a jaunt into the country and met with a band of Blackfeet Indians, with whom he remained for several months. Later he returned to England.

At the age of twenty-three, through the influence of his uncle, Lord Taunton, he was appointed to the diplomatic corps and was sent to Washington as an attache to the British legation. It was at that time Sir John Crompton was minister to the United States.

The whole time of Sir John was taken up with his efforts to escape the unmarried ladies of Washington who were seeking him. Labouchere soon found this weakness of his superior, and from that time on he took great delight in calling upon Sir John with several carriage loads full of the prettiest women and girls he could find in the capital.

Sir John finally had to ask to be taken back to England, and when this was done Labouchere found no more interest in Washington. He, too, asked to be removed, and for the next ten years he spent his time at the legations in Stockholm, Frankfort, St. Petersburg, Dresden and Constantinople. A book of his diplomatic escapades and doings would be very interesting reading.

While in Washington he went to New York upon business and found that his ready money was almost gone. He went into a saloon on a crosstown street just off Broadway. It was a second class place, and lined up against the bar were several Irish Americans who mistook him for a truculent patriot called "The O'Meaghen." Labouchere, not having much money, ate dinner with them at their expense. Then they discovered their mistake and wanted to beat Labouchere. That gentleman slipped out and went into the house of a perfect stranger, asking to be allowed to remain until the crowd outside got tired of waiting.

The owner of the house was delighted to think that he had a diplomat under his roof, and from that time on there was a friendship between the two that was broken only when the New Yorker died some years ago.

Labouchere was elected to parliament in 1866 from Windsor. The following year he was returned by Middlesex. He was a member from that time on until 1905, when he refused to be a candidate for re-election, giving as a reason his advancing age.

His speeches in parliament were wonders, and his constant wit was a source of pleasure for members and visitors for nearly forty years. He created one of the greatest riots in parliament when he suddenly arose from his seat one day and moved that the house of lords be abolished. He was a particular enemy of Lord Rosebery.

ELISHA SUCCESSOR TO ELIJAH

Restitution Work and Judgment Work Foreshadowed — Forty-two Youths Torn by the Bears—A Child Restored to Life.

II Kings 4:25-37—

"The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Romans 6:23.

OUR lesson follows in order the one of a week ago. Elisha was with Elijah until the whirlwind separated them and took Elijah out of sight. His mantle dropped to Elisha and Elisha's prayer was answered that a double portion of Elijah's spirit might rest upon him.

The same miracle occurred to him as to Elijah the prophet. On the other side of Jordan he began his career as a prophet. At Jericho the supply of water came from a brackish stream, unpalatable and unhealthful. Elisha went to the fountain and there performed a miracle similar to the one performed by Moses at the Wells of Moses at Marah. To this day the spring is known as Elisha's Fountain.

Again we read that one of these "sons of the prophets," or students, died and that his widowed mother was in want and that the Prophet Elisha helped her to exercise faith. She had a cruse of oil, which increased in supply as she poured it from vessel to vessel until she had sufficient for all her debts. Several other miracles of a restorationary character are noted, the most prominent of which is related in our lesson, namely, the restoration of a boy to life and health. The thing connected with Elisha's experiences which has attracted to him world-wide attention and general reprobation was his cursing of forty-two youths.

Healing the waters.

A Just Rebuke and Profitable Lesson

The thought is that he condemned them, just as Jesus said to some with most kindly art, "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees," etc. So Elisha pronounced woe or blight upon those youths of various ages who taunted him. He declared that something would befall them. Divine Justice would square accounts and vindicate him. Forthwith two she bears came upon the rabble, put them to flight, and forty-two of the mob were torn and wounded—more or less. Opponents of the Bible read into this the forty-two children were killed, but nothing of the kind is stated.

We are to remember that the Israelites under the leadership of their King Ahab and Queen Jezebel had been turned to idolatry, and that although the Prophet Elijah had re-established the true religion, the King and Queen and the majority of the people merely tolerated it. These youths who had tiraded against the Prophet were probably the young men and boys of Jericho.

Elisha Considered Typical.

Our interest in this story of Elisha's experiences after Elijah was taken away increases as we consider the fact that he, like Elijah, was quite a positive and typical character. We have already intimated a correspondency between Elijah and the antitypical priests and between Elisha and the antitypical Levites of the Gospel Age. Elisha may also typify the Ancient Worthies, into whose hands the instruction and blessing of the world will be placed at the inauguration of Messiah's Kingdom: "Princes in all the earth." From this standpoint we might think of Elisha representing the secondary class of the spirit-begotten ones first, and that his crossing of Jordan represents the death of this class of antitypical Levites.

With this view the after progress of Elisha and his work of judgment and restitution already referred to, correspond well with what we should expect at the inauguration of Messiah's Kingdom under the "princes." The healing of the water-spring would well represent the healing of the stream of Truth. For long centuries error and superstition combined with Satan's great falsehood, Ye shall not surely die, have made the waters of Truth brackish unpalatable, unhealthful. The putting of the salt into the Fountain or Spring symbolically represents the cleansing from untruth and error through the co-operation of the Church in glory, which, while here, is appropriately styled, "the salt of the earth."

Raising the dead.

The restoration of life to the dead is to be one of the great features of the New Dispensation—Messiah's Kingdom. And this power will be exercised doubtless through the "princes" of that time, typified, we believe, by Elisha. Those most to be favored will be those who will most thoroughly appreciate and best receive the "princes," represented by Elisha, even as the parents of this child whom Elisha raised from the dead had made gracious provision for the prophet's comfort.

Leisure Never for the Lazy.

Leisure is time for doing something useful; this leisure the diligent man will obtain, but the lazy man never.—Benjamin Franklin.

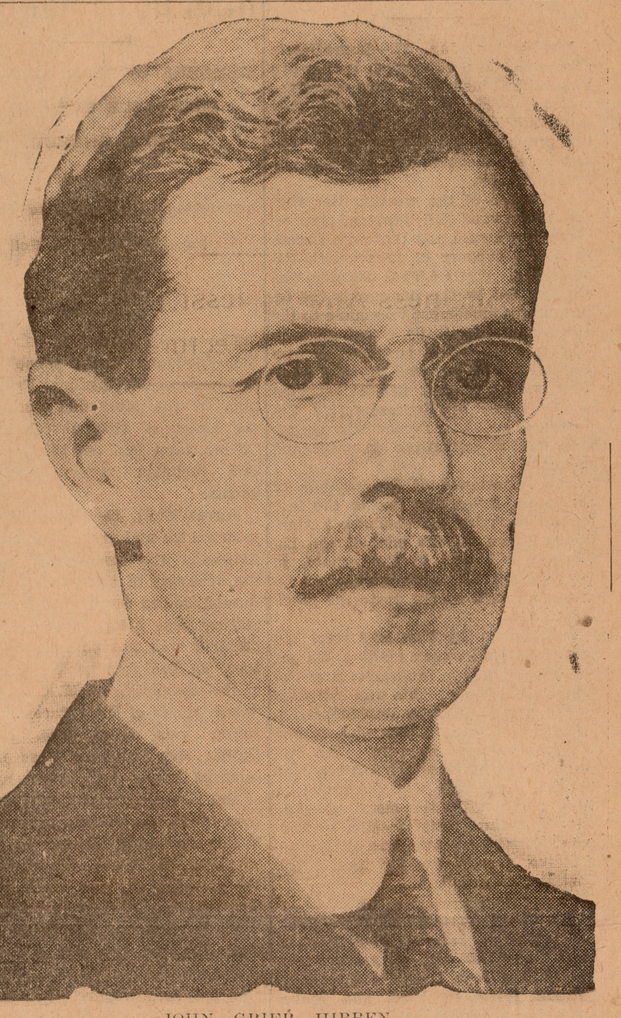
Prof. John Grier Hibben Is New President of Princeton

He Has Been Professor of Philosophy at the University Since 1891.

Son of an Illinois Clergyman, He Was Graduated From Princeton at 20.

JOHN GRIER HIBBEN, who has just been elected president of Princeton university, is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1882, and since 1891 has been a member of the Princeton faculty, occupying the chair of logic. He is well known as an author, having published over half a dozen volumes on logic, philosophy and belles lettres. He is president of the American Philosophical society and editor in chief of the International Series of Philosophical Monographs, the first of which he wrote.

Princeton men generally will rejoice at the selection of Professor Hibben.



JOHN GRIER HIBBEN.

Having been a successful professor of philosophy at the university for nearly twenty-five years, he has their confidence and affection. He will be of particular value to Princeton at the present time, owing to his entire sympathy with the plans for Princeton's new graduate college, now in the process of building.

Professor Hibben was born in Peoria, Ill., fifty years ago, the son of a clergyman, the Rev. Samuel Hibben. He was graduated from Princeton in 1882. As an undergraduate he won many scholastic honors, including one of the Stinnecke prizes, the class of 1861 prize, a junior orator medal, and at graduation he was the valedictorian of his class and won the J. S. K. fellowship in mathematics. He was also elected president of his class, an office he still holds. He received the master of arts degree from Princeton in 1885, the doctorate of philosophy in 1893 and the honorary LL. D. from Lafayette in 1907. From 1883 to 1887 he studied at the Princeton Theological seminary and at the University of Berlin and was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1887, serving as pastor of the Falling Spring Presbyterian church of Chambersburg, Pa., from that year until 1891, when he returned to Princeton as instructor in logic and psychology.

The versatility of his scholarship was early demonstrated on his return to Princeton, for in addition to his work in logic and psychology he conducted classes in mathematics, Biblical literature and ethics. He was advanced to an assistant professorship of logic in 1894 and in 1897 to the Stuart professorship of logic.

Meantime he has been active in original research, having published in 1896 his "Inductive Logic," which is extensively used as a textbook in schools and colleges; "Problems of Philosophy" in 1896, "Hegel's Logic" in 1902, "Deductive Logic" in 1905 and "The Philosophy of Enlightenment" in 1909. The latter is one of twelve volumes in a series on "The Epochs of Philosophy," of which Professor Hibben is the general editor, the contributing authors being leading philosophers of Great Britain and the United States.

During the present year Professor Hibben has been giving a series of public lectures in Princeton on philosophical and scientific thought which has attracted large audiences. By these lectures, Princeton men say, his ability to give clear and persuasive expression to an abstruse theme has been brought out more than ever before. For several years also he has been much in demand as a speaker before alumni associations as well as at anniversaries of other institutions and on public occasions.

Professor Hibben has for several years served on important faculty committees, which has given him valuable administrative experience. He is also a member of the graduate council, which was constituted a few years ago to give organized effect to the work and influence of the alumni.

ALL WORLD PEACE DINNER.

Extraordinary Function In Washington Planned For February.

An important international peace function is to be held in Washington early in February, when the committee on foreign affairs of the house will be the hosts at dinner to the secretary of state and the diplomatic corps. Secretary Knox has accepted the invitation, and invitations to the diplomats have had a generous response. The dinner will be given in the Pan-American building.

Never has a secretary of state been the guest at dinner of the members of the house who constitute that committee, and never before have the diplomats of the world been invited to such a function. Peace is to be the subject at the dinner, and there is assurance of the greatest harmony.

CANADA WANTS A NAVY.

Minister of Marine to Visit London In Connection With Scheme.

Canada is evidently contemplating some new scheme of naval defense. Mr. Hazen, the new minister of marine, is to visit London in order to consult with Mr. Churchill and the board of admiralty concerning the best available method of naval defense which Canada might adopt.

Mr. Hazen, it is considered, will proceed on the assumption that the interests of the empire as a whole must determine whatever new policy Canada may adopt. After Mr. Hazen has returned home the Canadian government will formulate its naval policy in accordance with the advice and desire of the board of admiralty at Whitehall.

COMMERCIAL POULTRY.

One Method of Feeding Fowls on Large Scale Described.

In a recent bulletin issued by the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture the methods and results of feeding poultry on a large commercial scale were described. The investigation of this subject by Alfred E. Lee of the department is believed to be the first attempt to acquire comprehensive and reliable figures on the cost of producing a pound of gain in poultry.

Portable feeding batteries, as shown in the cut are described as follows: This battery is divided into eight coops, four tiers of two coops each, and holds eighty springers or sixty-four hens. It is 2 feet 7½ inches wide and 5 feet 9 inches high. The slats in the front are one and seven-eighths inches apart and each set of slats, which is eight and one-quarter inches wide, is held in by buttons, so that it can be easily removed and a set of slats which are closer together or farther apart may be quickly inserted. As the size of the chickens' heads vary considerably during the season this changeable front is of value. The dropping pans are one and three-quarter inches below the floors, which are made of heavy, square mesh wire, and have roost boards 2 inches wide by three quarters of an inch thick by 2 feet 6 inches long. The bottom of the first floor is six inches from the ground, and it is fifteen inches from the wire floor to the top of each coop, making each tier, including the dropping pans, sixteen and three-quarters of an inch deep.

The battery rolls on four wheels, two double pivot wheels in front and two wheels connected by a bar in the rear. The sliding doors on the sides are fitted with hooks which fasten into eyes on the battery. The whole battery is made of furring, 1⅞ by ⅞ inches, covered with two inch mesh wire and laths. The feeding troughs are three and one-half inches across the top, inside measurement, and three inches from the top edge to the bottom, outside measurement. These troughs are held in place with bent wires, which are flexible, so that they give if the troughs hit any obstacle, thus preventing breakage. A wire partition divides the battery into two equal parts. A similar battery is used for feeding turkeys except that it contains three tiers instead of four, and the slats in front are two and five-eighths inches apart.

Homemade Fire Extinguisher.

A homemade fire extinguisher easily made and always ready for use can be made by any one, as shown in the accompaning illustration. Procure the required number of thin, flat pint or quart bottles, make a solution composed of one gallon of water, three pounds of salt and one and one-half pounds of sal ammoniac. Fill the bottles not quite full and cork, seal the corks over with any sealing wax, tie a stout cord around the neck of each bottle and hang in any handy place. In case of fire shake one of the bottles slightly to mix contents and throw in such a manner that it will break as close as possible to the fire. A gas is formed that will smother out the fire. By using the inexpensive extinguishers many small conflagrations may be prevented, and many times the small fire will cause the big one if not placed under control in time—Iowa Homestead.

RULES FOR CURING MEAT.

Preparing In Brine Most Desirable For Average Farm Conditions.

All meat that is to go into the curing vessel must be thoroughly cooled before it is packed. It is also well to let it cool thoroughly before attempting to cut it into convenient pieces, because it is firmer and can be cut into much smoother pieces than when it is warm.

Pork may be dry salted, or cured in brine, the latter being the most desirable for average farm conditions, because it requires less attention and takes up less room. When pork is dry cured it is necessary to rehandle the meat and rub it several times with the curing materials used. With the brine process, the meat is put in the vessel, the brine poured over it, and it will not be necessary to handle it again until it is ready to be taken out and smoked.

In cutting the pork, trim all parts smoothly, and remove all scraggy portions, as they can be used to advantage for sausage meat while fresh, but are wasted if put through the curing process. In trimming the hams and shoulders, expose as little of the lean meat as is necessary, because the action of the salt while in process of curing will make the lean meat hard.

After all pieces of meat have been properly cooled and trimmed, take each piece separately and rub it all over with salt and lay it aside for twenty-four hours. After the salt has been absorbed, pack it into a vessel—sirup barrel or any other barrel that has been properly cleaned. Pack the meat in tightly, putting the hams and shoulders at the bottom. Weigh out, for each 100 pounds of meat, ten pounds of salt, four pounds of brown sugar and two ounces of saltpeter. Dissolve this in four gallons of boiling water. Stir it well, so that all the salt and sugar will be dissolved. Let it stand until cool, and then pour over the meat. This amount of water should be sufficient to cover well the meat in the vessel.

Put a round wooden cover over the top and weight it down with a stone so as to keep all the meat under the brine, but if not sufficient brine add enough to cover the meat. Put the vessel in some cool place and let it stand for from six to eight weeks, when the meat will be ready to be taken out of the brine and smoked or used. It may be left in the brine for a longer time if desired. The use of sugar in brine keeps the lean meat from getting hard and also adds a sweet flavor to the meat. The small amount of saltpeter is used to retain the natural color of the meat.—Colman's Rural World.

FINE FOR ODD JOBS.

Take Your Little House With You When You Work About the Farm.

For many jobs in the fall and winter a portable house to use as a shelter will be of great advantage. The same idea may be applied to a pen for use in event of a sow farrowing in the field or for a portable house for chickens or turkeys to be moved about the farm. In fact, the same building may be applied to all three purposes with success.

Build the floor the size you wish and make as strong as possible. Slightly back from the center an axle is placed, which can be made of a 4 by 4 scantling and fitted with two old wheels for moving the house. A short tongue is placed on one end, which is fastened behind a wagon when moving the building. Under the tongue a block is placed when it is desired to use the building upon wheels, as in husking corn in the fields in cold weather.

PORTABLE HOUSE.
[From the American Agriculturist.]

The building is erected above the floor, and if for corn husking alone the walls may be canvas, painted to keep out the rain, with a small bench built at one end for the stalks to lie upon, with hooks for strings. This makes it as comfortable a working place as can be desired and with the advantage that it can be moved from one end of the field to the other as needed.

Where built for a threefold purpose the walls should be made of light boards or at least the lower part of walls and the roof of light lumber or canvas. When used as a pen for hogs or fowls it is moved to the proper place and the wheels removed, thus resting the building on the axle, and by replacing wheels it can again be moved to a new location, as desired.—American Agriculturist.

Remedy For Hog Cholera.

The following remedy for hog cholera has been used with good results, says the Kansas Farmer: Take equal parts of 4 per cent solution of carbolic acid and 2 per cent solution of morphine sulphate, and give once daily, hypodermically, twenty to forty drops, according to the size of the hog. Inject on inside of fore or hind leg above the knee or hock joint, using proper precaution as to cleanliness. Separate well hogs from the sick, treating them the same as the sick.

Reputation is an invaluable asset. Do the products of your farm have a reputation? If not why not?

YPSI ROLLERS LOSE HEAVILY TO ANN ARBOR

On Huston's Alleys in Ann Arbor Friday night the Ypsilanti Bowling team went down to defeat before a combination of city and student bowlers. The Ypsi boys were far from being in best form and members of the team who can usually be counted on for good scores rolled very poorly. In the first two games Ypsi was simply outclassed by the Ann Arbor boys who were going in great shape with the exception of Johnson who was way off form. The first game went to Ann Arbor by a majority of 96 pins and the second by 70, making a lead of 166 for the Ypsi boys to make up in the las tgame and right hard did they try to even matters up but the handicap was too great and while they defeated their opponents by 81 pins they were still 75 pins behind on the total. Millman was high average man for the evening, rolling 564 for 188 average. Korbel was much the best of the Ypsi boys, making one score of 205 and averaging 173. The scores.

NORMAL MEN ARE BADLY DEFEATED

TEACHERS ARE SNOWED UNDER BY SUPERIOR WORK OF DETROIT YOUNGSTERS.

The score of the basket ball game between the Detroit University men and the Normals at Detroit Friday night was 62 to 16 in favor of Detroit. The Normals were outplayed from start to finish and were mere toys in the hands of their opponents. The Detroit men kept the ball in their possession fully three-quarters of the time and were far superior to the Normals in passing and basket shooting. Rhoades was the star for the Normals with four of the five goals, Hindelang making the other one on a long shot. The score of the first half was Detroit, 28; and Normals, 4.

THE BEST PROOF

Ypsilanti Citizens Cannot Doubt It.

Doan's Kidney Pills were used—they cured.

The story was told to Ypsilanti residents.

Time has strengthened the evidence.

Has proven the cure permanent.

The testimony is home testimony—

The proof convincing.

It can be investigated by Ypsilanti residents.

Mrs. Charles Wilkinson, 513 S. Huron St., Ypsilanti Mich., says: "I am very much pleased with the results of the use of Doan's Kidney Pills in my son's case. About three years ago, he had an attack of typhoid fever and after that complained of his back. When stooping or lifting sharp pains darted through him and I also noticed that the secretions from his kidneys were unnatural. Doan's Kidney Pills, which were obtained at Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s Drug Store, removed the trouble after two boxes had been used."

The above statement was given in December, 1908, and when Mrs. Wilkinson was interviewed on September 20, 1911, she said: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills made in my son's case has been lasting. I am pleased to verify all I have previously said in praise of this preparation."
